Did you know once upon a time there was an egg that could do something? Ever wonder what would hatch if you could kick this egg in the river? How about if you kicked it in the dirt? Now you can find out for yourself! StreamSavers is a 'drag-and-drop' survival game for the modern world. Viewers can watch you as you play on Twitch, Twitter, Instagram, YouTube, Facebook, Twitch, and other social media platforms. Viewers can collect eggs, seek power ups, and drop in with their own names to boost their character's stats in PVP modes. Donations will be sent to your chosen charity. This is a unique experience where viewers can get to watch the game on Twitch, and interact with it using Twitch commands and donations. NPC Factions Darkness Watchers - Members of this faction have an overwhelming obsession with shiny things and enjoy hunting them with traps. The faction will try to collect eggs to unlock new tiers of traps and force viewers to pay for the eggs, while increasing the cooldown time on traps. The Lunatics - The Lunatics hate anything and everything. They avoid shiny and shiny things, like eggs, but also include fluorescent lights, doors, and any glowing things. They will try to steal money and eggs from other factions to obtain more items to purchase to boost their own faction's power. The Watchers - The Watchers love shiny things, and use it to secretly perform experiments with potions. The faction will seek out and destroy all of the eggs, and then order the Lunatics to rebuild them. The Hypnotists - The Hypnotists are a force to be reckoned with, even though you can't see them. They are always buzzing around to find and collect eggs, but their greed is their undoing. They will scam viewers into watching their live streams as they harvest eggs and use them to increase their star level. The Killers - The Killers are a cruel and calculating faction. Members will gladly kill, without remorse, for whatever purpose. They only care about their own agendas, and will do anything to obtain more eggs, even if it means crushing them. The Black Marketeers - The Black Marketeers are a group of members with a variety of excuses to kill or destroy eggs. Some members act like air raid sirens and will drop the egg and hurl it into the darkness, or lure people in and then shoot at them. Others will charge random factions and insert their weapons in eggs to make c9d1549cdd

The Legend of Fearsome Hollows The Legend of the Fearsome Hollows is a 1981 role-playing game adventure for fantasy and horror settings published by Metamorphosis Press. Plot The Fearsome Hollows is the site of a grotesque legend. It takes place in the Fairy Hollows, where wanderers are said to succumb to illusions and discover their reflection trapped in mirrors and covered with dust. The people of the village near these woods have begun going mad, and their madman is said to make people "fearsome" and to hiss in the dusty shadows, leaving people to fear ghosts and curses. As the people begin to lose their minds, the evil has been encroaching on the village. Reception Ronald Pehr reviewed The Fearsome Hollows in The Space Gamer No. 43. Pehr commented that "The box will appeal to a fairly wide audience of fantasy and horror fans, but it will not be for all. The action is sparse and linear, not often giving a feel for the general setting of the game. The package... is not a cheap one, nor particularly attractive." Reviews Different Worlds #36 (Jan./Feb., 1982) References Category:Metamorphosis Press adventuresRyugu Ryugu (;, ; also Romanized as Ryūgu or Ruju, never retranslated as Rugu; ,) is a strongly elongated, asteroid-like body in the asteroid belt. It measures approximately long and wide, and its mass is estimated at 13.7% that of the Moon. The asteroid was named after the Japanese word for "emerald" in Japanese. History Ryugu was discovered by the Korean-American astronomer Richard K. Preston
