What I am trying to do is I am trying to convert object to json in angularjs. How can I convert below object into json format? var temp = { "address": { "value": { "address": "xyz" } } }; If I use JSON.stringify(temp), the output I am getting is below "{"address":[{"value":[{"address":"xyz"}]}]" How can I have json like this? "{"address":{"value":{"address":"xyz"}}}" A: You can try this code var temp = { "address": { "value": { "address": "xyz" } } }; console.log(JSON.stringify(temp.address.value.address)); Q: Check if a variable is a constant in PhpStorm In PhpStorm, there is a code analysis tool (that I do not want to turn on/off) that scans for "PHP Usage". For example: if($variable == 1){ $variable = 5; } This will show the error "PHP Usage". But if I do this: const $variable = 1; if($variable == 1){ $variable = 5; } PhpStorm does not complain. I believe the engine of PhpStorm does not consider $variable
