Do you want to customize the basic text counting function to an individual expression, giving you the possibility to add your own expressions directly to the key? If you want to use the Count function and don't want to use your own statements, then count macros might be the best solution for you. The Count function in Expressions is the most powerful counting function for a textfield in Microsoft Word or Excel. It is included in all editions of Expressions and does not require additional programming. Count macros are now also included in all Expressions editions. Thus, you can use macros for counting in Word or Excel. This article shows you how to use macros to count text in a textfield in the Insert Tab of the Excel Text tool window. As you will see, it is very easy to count with macros. Create a new macro with the Insert menu. Select Macro... and select Count. Now, create your own count statement. Here, we assume that you want to count the text within a textbox. You will use the following formula: =TEXTBOX.COUNT Now, type in your count statement. You can also add a textbox into the count statement. For this purpose, you need to add a double quotation (") at the beginning and at the end of your count statement. For example: =TEXTBOX.COUNT "Some Text" Please note: If you want to change the text format, you need to type in the following characters: =TEXTBOX.COUNT "= (double quotation) (no quotation mark) Some Text ⊠ 15 day trial Expressions Description: Do you want to customize the basic text counting function to an individual expression, giving you the possibility to add your own expressions directly to the Expressions program? This new edition of a long-standing word count tool is now enhanced with an automatic solution to the ever increasing problem of "counting text in PDF documents" available in over 16 languages. With the help of the PDF Text Tool, it's easy to count the text in PDF files, or the text within complex PDF files such as forms, signature pages or bookmarks. We designed the PDF Text Tool to quickly and accurately count text within PDF documents without requiring the user to set any options, enabling it to count text in any PDF document with just a couple of clicks. While it can be very easy to count text in Word documents or other word processing applications, counting text in PDF documents is, understandably, much more difficult. Even when you have the best tools and methods, it can often be time-consuming and frustrating, and the results can vary considerably depending on how the PDF was created, what PDF applications are installed on the machine and whether there are any special formatting issues. That's why we developed the PDF Text Tool - a simple and powerful application that can count text in PDF documents with ease. The PDF Text Tool has been developed specifically for counting text in PDF documents. It is independent of the PDF documents being counted, but requires Adobe Acrobat 5.0 or later (regardless of whether or not you have Acrobat Reader installed). The PDF Text Tool is not meant to replace traditional word count software or other text counting tools. However, the PDF Text Tool is perfect for those who need to count the text in PDF documents, and who don't want to have to spend time on advanced options, or who have only one or two PDF documents to count, or who prefer to use the same counting method for all their documents. Features: - Counting Text in PDF Documents - Automatic calculation of taxes, discounts, surcharges and other factors based on the count. - Count PDF documents including pages with images and other complex PDF documents like forms, signature pages, bookmarks and more. - Count text in any PDF document, regardless of which words were used to create it. - Count text within Word, Excel and PowerPoint files. - Count text within all common file types such as DOC, XLS, PPT, PPS, TXT, CSV, HTM, XML, ASP, PDF, ZIP, JAR, TAR, RAR, other archives, and multiple compression formats. - Count text from clipboard with a hotkey. - Count
