However, our analysis of the gut peptides that are linked to cognitive performance (e.g., GLP-1, PYY) did not yield any evidence to support this hypothesis. It is also possible that this could be due to differences in diet and/or microbiota, which could impact the gut peptide system. Influence of Gut Peptides on Brain Tissue Morphology {#s4 4} ------ The human cerebrum has a surface area of approximately 2.5 m^2^ and occupies approximately two-thirds of the cranial vault, making it the largest and most complex endocrine organ in the body. Previous studies have shown a relationship between gut peptides and the hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal axis, and gut peptides may have an influence on the function of the brain and central nervous system. Using a functional MRI-based data set of healthy young adults, our findings suggest that 2--3 h after oral consumption of an energy-restricted diet rich in nutrients for brain health, the gut peptides GLP-1 and PYY are both significantly elevated and positively correlated with brain white matter volume (Luvizunas et al., submitted). These findings, which could not be confirmed in prior studies that assessed the association between gut peptides and brain structural plasticity in older adults ([@B36]; [@B38]; [@B41 0cc13bf012

How to get this badboy going with my keyboard (home play and touchscreen no workie?) There are 3 main things you need to know... But the first is the keyboard controls on Windows. If you use a keyboard you will probably be on Windows. There are a lot of options for keyboard support. The first option is to use Windows keys on your keyboard. Left Windows key + R Right Windows key + R Both Windows keys + R The second option is a program that opens a deskop and lets you use the Windows key + U to change between windows. All you have to do is download a program called TweakUI. It's free. Just download the program and run it. When you run it you will get a window that looks like this. Hold down the Windows key and go to the top right to see all options. Keep pressing the Windows key and click the "Customize" button. On the new window scroll down to "System Switcher" and press the check box. If you want you can add more things there. And you also have the option of going back and unchecking the check box on the "System Switcher" tab. If you uncheck it, it will not be available.
