MSN Content Plus can be downloaded for free on the following website: role of D-dimer in prostate cancer. The diagnosis of prostate cancer often leads to unnecessary anxiety and a diagnostic work-up that can be expensive and potentially harmful. Prostate-specific antigen (PSA) is the most widely used marker for prostate cancer, but it does not accurately distinguish between localized and metastatic disease. The ability to detect metastatic disease would reduce the number of biopsies required, thereby reducing complications and anxiety and making treatment of localized disease more effective. The novel cancer biomarkers D-dimer and osteopontin (OPN) have been studied in relation to disease progression and could help to improve the diagnosis of prostate cancer. Our review focuses on the ability of D-dimer and OPN to distinguish prostate cancer from benign prostate hyperplasia and to detect metastatic disease. A study by researchers at the University of Alabama at Birmingham has found that individuals who have used cannabis may be less susceptible to alcohol-related damage in the brain than those who don't. The study was conducted by Dr. David E. Levy, an associate
