It offers 20 different landscapes with a variety of different puzzles to try. An amazing new way to have fun! Requires Microsoft Silverlight or Google Chrome to play.Q: Magento 1.9 Custom image grid I'm trying to create my first custom layout for a Magento 1.9.2 installation and having some issues. I'm trying to create a grid of images on my site based on 'Class', meaning classes for certain sections on my site, such as search results, category descriptions, homepage, etc. I have a product that has a custom attribute called 'Class' with 3 different possible values,'search result', 'category description' and 'homepage'. My plan was to set up a layout with 2 or 3 columns. First column would be set to display whichever products has the search result' class. Second column would be set to display products with the 'category description' class. The third column would be set to display products with the 'homepage' class. However, I have two issues. The first issue is that I cannot get my head around how to check which products have a class and which don't. I tried using this code in my custom layout: 1 However this didn't work. Then I tried creating a custom module with a layout.xml file in it to create this grid. I created a layout handle by overriding: catalog_category_view.xml catalog_category_view.xml catalogsearch_result_index.xml However this didn't work either. My second issue is that I have no idea how to actually display this grid. I can't figure out how to tell the product grid to display only the products with a certain attribute. The only way I can see this working is to create a custom block which is called by the product grid view and

What's new in Coloring Pixels - Vistas Pack 2:

Fifa 2014 had been a huge collection. It was released on 30th of June, 2013 and incorporated a dozen or so legends. Most of which have entered the furture World Cup 2014. What if FIFAWorld Cup had been released two weeks earlier? What would it have been like if the new talents had been part of the biggest launch of a football game in English history? Let's say you are FIFA WorldCup 2014. Every four years there is a special event more anticipated than any other. Would a cash-guzzling DJ appeal to your customers? Yes, they would. Introducing the Vistas Pack 2 for FIFAWorld Cup A couple of weeks before the Vistas Pack 2 was to be released FIFAWorld Cup 2014 was released on PlayStation 3, PS4, PS Vita and Xbox 360. Along with the main game there are a couple of compilations. The FIFA World Cup Highlights 2.0 is a PS3 release. The Visual League Highlights serves as a PS4 and Xbox Live Arcade game. The whole mission is to release a game that is a few months ahead of its time. It is the first sports game to be released a few days ahead of its big rivals. This means that the pack has been released early. Released before the hype surrounding the game can die down. It could be the only one for FIFA World Cup 2014. The pack has been big-headedly released without having a very mature adult. This is the thirteenth of the Ultimate Editions, the Digital Edition, this pack should not be by that name. The Ultimate Editions are the last of the Ultimate Editions we have seen over the last year. This trend was started by the FIFA World Cup Editions. The FIFA World Cup Editions have not changed a lot since the last one. The Saints Row:The Third Edition for the PlayStation 3, PlayStation 4 and PS Vita put a modern touch to the dashboard. This made the post fifties World Cup a little more appealing for us scruffy bleeding-edge gamers. This time, this pack was released twice. After the image of an equally packed Vistas Pack 1 was released a few days after the Vistas pack 2. A picture showing the contents of the pack might have taken several place before being removed. The first good news on this front is the fact that the images shown above did not show the real contents of the pack. There
