“FIFA 20 was a revolutionary console football game, and we are doing it again,” said Aaron Dubé, Creative Director at EA Canada. “Our ambition is to make the next generation of player-generated gameplay the norm, not the exception.” EA SPORTS Football Club is also undergoing a major rework for FIFA 22, which has not yet been announced in full detail. More information about Football Club modes is due to be revealed in May. In addition to the first-person camera, zoomable player models and better animations, the new version of FIFA also features a brand-new Club Personalities system, similar to Last Year’s Ultimate Team mode, which lets you see what a player would look like on your own team. Personalities only feature player cards that you can add to your FIFA Ultimate Team using Gold, which will also be introduced with the new game. Along with six additional playable kits, the Online Stance System now makes it easier for players to play the way they want to. In addition to earning player cards from Premier League players, FIFA will now allow players to get more cards from set packs. You’ll be able to earn more cards from these packs by completing objectives and challenges. “FIFA is one of the biggest football franchises in the world, and we could not be more excited to bring the world’s game to Playstation 4” said Steve Nicol, President, PlayStation. “We can’t wait to release this magnificent game to our community. For the first time, players will be able to step inside a FIFA environment with the responsiveness and nuance that have long been the exclusive domain of the hard keyboard.” FIFA 22 is scheduled to be released on Aug. 30 on Playstation 4, Xbox One, and PC. It is priced at $59.99 on Xbox One and PS4 and $49.99 on PC. For more information about FIFA 22, please visit or follow #FIFAMOTION. About FIFA FIFA 20 is available on Xbox One, PlayStation 4, Nintendo Switch, and PC. FIFA 20 is rated E+ (Everyone) by the ESRB for mild violence and crude humor. Players that are under the age of 16 can play the game with a parental control system.
