Comparison of clinical, demographic, radiological, and laboratory findings ` constructs? What does " " mean in `java.nio.file.Paths.get(java.lang.String...)` constructs? It seems to have the same effect as " ". `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName.extension", "", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "n", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE)`; Is it the shorthand way of doing one of these? `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE)`; or `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE, new String[]{" "})`; A: is a literal character, in this case representing a new line. When you have multiple constructors with parameters in java, you're creating a chain of constructors. So your first constructor is `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE)`. Then the `String[]` constructor is called. This parameter is passed through to the `String` constructor that is finally called. This new `String` created contains the empty string and the newline. A: is the literal character of the string containing a newline. `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE) ^` Arguably, a more sensible constructor for the original case would be: `Paths.get(rootPath, "fileName", ReadOption.NOFOLLOW_LINKS, "", StringComparator.CASE_INSENSITIVE, new String[]{`
